

I feel that receiving phone calls to your private home to solicit selling anything is a violation of my and my family's privacy and sanctity of home. It's bad enough non-profit's still call. These are unwelcome and annoying calls. If someone wants our money, they can request it by mail. Then I may choose to open it or throw it out. Many people cannot afford caller ID and shouldn't have to purchase extra features just to protect their privacy. Since when do sales override my right to privacy?
